Highlights from #ALSB2018 in Portland

Jamie Prenkert Elected to the Executive Committee
Seidel, Allison, and Reed Honored with Top Faculty Awards
Linda Christiansen Recognized for Extraordinary Service

ALSB members elected Jamie Prenkert to the ALSB Executive Committee. He will host the 2021 meeting in Minneapolis.

ALSB honored George Siedel and John Allison with Distinguished Career Faculty Awards; awarded Alex Reed the Early Career Distinguished Faculty Award; and recognized Linda Christiansen with the Kay Duffy Memorial Award for Extraordinary Services to the ALSB.

Marisa Pagnattaro's 2018 Conference Recap: I hope you all enjoyed Portland and the company of our colleagues as much as I did. Attendance at events was very strong and I know that many of you had a chance to slip out of the conference to enjoy all that Portland has to offer, including Powell's books, the Farmer's Market, and food carts.

Executive Committee met on Thursday to discuss a range of issues including future meetings, awards procedures, best practices for regionals and sections, social media, the status of each journal, as well as membership and retention issues. Janine Hiller, our AACSB International Liaison reported her observations from the AACSB ICAM Conference earlier this year. We also had a preliminary discussion about the upcoming ALSB Centennial in 2024, starting the conversation about the location and events to commemorate this historic event.

At the House of Delegates meeting on Friday, delegates made status reports from each regional and discussed best practices. We are fortunate to have dedicated members throughout the United States and Canada working to ensure the health of each region.

At the Newcomer's Lunch, we welcomed 36 new members. It is always heartening to know that our ranks are being replenished and expanded to include tenure track positions. This is a good time to remind new and all members that Lucien Dhooge coordinates mentoring relationships. Please do not hesitate to contact him if you would like to have or be a mentor.

On Friday afternoon, the meeting started with a series of panels and presentations. I moderated a panel, Insights from the Top: Ways Legal Studies Faculty Can Have a Positive Impact, featuring Jere Morehead, Joan Gabel, Caryn Beck-Dudley, and Bob Boehmer. These illustrious ALSB members provided a range of perspectives on higher education trends and administrative service, which sparked many conversations throughout the conference. Without question, we are very fortunate to have these colleagues who are leaders in higher education.

Joan Gabel, Jere Morehead, Marisa Pagnattaro, Caryn Beck-Dudley, and Bob Boehmer

The Ice Breaker Cocktail Party on Friday evening on the Skyline Level of the Hilton was a very festive event, not the least of which was the gourmet tater tots bar. The slider station was a close second. The view was great and the company of friends and colleagues even better.

As always, members packed the house for the Master Teacher Symposium. 2017 Master Teacher Mystica Alexander moderated the session featuring Michael Fricke, Joshua Perry, Matt Roessing, and Sean Shannon. From HBO to Sadhu to Frolick & Detour, LLP to the Sleeping Yankee Fan, we all took away many insightful and engaging pedagogy strategies.

Joan Gabel, University of South Carolina's Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost, was the keynote speaker at the Plenary Lunch in the Atrium Ballroom. Her remarks entitled "Higher Education and the Evolving Social Contract" delved into the ways in which the tenets of social contract theory align with the investment of societies into higher education. Using multiple references from the humanities, Joan focused on the foundational idea that an education improves society and its citizens.

She then discussed the ways in which this agreement or exchange is facing disruption and renegotiation. We all appreciated Joan's insights on the potential impact of these changes on our colleges and universities.

The Women's Tea in the Gray Room at the Duniway was a special time to connect and reconnect while enjoying cookies, crème brulee, and other delicious treats. This is a welcoming place to talk about our families and careers.

As you might imagine, I worried about all of the details, not the least of which were the pre-conference sweltering temperatures. Through some kind of Dan Herron magic, the weather was lovely for the tasting and dinner at St. Josef's Winery. Honoring the achievements and contributions of John Allison and George Siedel made this event particularly special. Their achievements inspire us all.

At the Business Meeting, the Executive Committee reported on agenda items from its business meeting and received feedback from members. The election results were announced: Jamie Prenkert was elected to be the Secretary-Treasurer of ALSB. Jamie is currently Associate Vice Provost for Faculty and Academic Affairs at Indiana University. We welcome his thoughtful leadership style to the Executive Committee. Other important announcements: the transition of the Proceedings Editor from Ronnie Cohen to Linda Ficht and the transition of the coordination of the Student Paper Competition from Adam Sulkowski to Tanya Marcum and Elizabeth Cameron. Many thanks to these members for their past and future service.

At the Annual Banquet we enjoyed a family-style dinner and plenty of time to talk. Although we had many awards to celebrate, we endeavored to keep the program short. I am pleased to recap the 2018 award winners and recognitions:

As I wrap up the meeting details, I hope you all appreciate the incredible dedication of Dan Herron and his amazing team: Debbie Herron, Shelly Whitmer, Trisha Smith, and Paula Stevens. It was a pleasure planning the meeting with Dan who always goes the extra mile – especially on food and flowers! In addition to being indispensable at the meeting, Debbie also went on both pre-conference planning trips to Portland, adding her expert eye to the planning process. I am not sure how Shelly works with all of the complicated conference program scheduling, but her efforts are much appreciated. At the meeting, Tricia and Paula worked with Debbie and Shelly to keep everything moving smoothly. All it took was a look over at the registration table to get their reassuring look “We’ve got this” and know that we were all in good hands.

Special thanks to are due to Chris Herron, the master behind the conference app, adding links to the papers and refining other aspects of Guidebook. His efforts to make the app user friendly is transitioning us into the 21st century and a paperless system.

Lastly, thank you to all conference sponsors, Cengage, McGraw-Hill, West Academic Publishing, Wolters Kluwer, EthicsGame, and WorldStrides. Thanks, too, to the University of Georgia and the Terry College of Business for their support of the meeting and also UT-Austin and the University of Michigan for their support of the social event honoring John Allison and George Siedel.

I have many fond memories of the meeting and hope you do, too! Looking forward to seeing everyone in Montréal!

s/Marisa Pagnattaro, 2018-19 ALSB President

President's Message:

Marisa Pagnattaro

I am honored to serve as the President of the Academy of Legal Studies in Business. When I joined the ALSB and attended the Baltimore meeting in 2000, I was amazed at the collegiality of the group and the general reunion atmosphere. I hope that all of you look forward to regional meetings and our annual meeting in the same way. I am proud of our supportive intellectual environment, something we should never take for granted.

Looking ahead, I will be hosting the Executive Committee in Athens this February. Among other things, we will revisit the Strategic Plan (2012). During 2011, Janine Hiller guided the planning process, which culminated in the presentation of the current Strategic Plan at the 2012 ALSB meeting in New Orleans. We will review the status of the action items and make plans for the future. We will also consider other ongoing issues such as the 2024 Centennial Meeting; more visibility within the AACSB; research impact and journal lists (including the a strategy for getting on the FT List); and increasing membership, including section membership. If you have agenda items you want the Executive Committee to discuss, please do not hesitate to let me know (pagnatta@uga.edu).

I hope that your semester is off to a great start! As you look for news to incorporate into your classes remember to check @ALSB_Law on Twitter. For those of you who tweet news, remember to include #ALSB to help us retweet your news.

Best regards to all, Marisa

ACADEMY OF
LEGAL STUDIES
IN BUSINESS

I do love autumn....apple cider, the colors, football (a major weakness of mine), reislings, and turkey with all the trimmings. It is also a time to bask in the hopefully-anticipated success of our August conference. Again, our program chair rose to the occasion. Marisa's Portland, Oregon conference was great, great fun with intellectually stimulating academic sessions and fun-reunion-like event such as our Sunday afternoon dinner and wine-tastings at the St. Josef's Winery thirty minutes south of Portland.

But there is truly no rest for the weary. I am off to do two site visits this fall. First, though, congratulations on Jamie Prenkert's election to the ALSB officers' ranks. He and I visited Minneapolis for the 2021 conference and inspected three beautiful hotels. We are in the process of negotiating a contract. Eric Yordy and I will be off to Montreal the first weekend of November to finalize the planning for the 2019 annual conference August 6-10 at the Montreal Intercontinental Hotel. All the details for that meeting will be forthcoming via ALSBNEWS and the January newsletter.

The Executive Committee not only welcomes Jamie to its ranks, but also Sandy Benson as JLSE editor-in-chief and Julie Manning Magid as ABLJ editor-in-chief. Finally, much deserved congratulations to ALSB executive committee member Linda Christiansen for being awarded the Kay Duffy Award in Portland for truly extraordinary service to the Academy.

Until January, take care, enjoy the richly redolent sights and smells and sounds of autumn. Also, watch your email for ALSB updates.

“Best Practices” for ALSB Sections

At the Annual Conference in Portland, a session was held to discuss “best practices” for ALSB sections. It was recognized that it is normal for the popularity and vitality of sections to ebb and flow, and to have, from time to time, new sections created and old sections dissolved. It was noted that there have been primarily two successful models for section leadership – first, where one or two people have driven the section for many years, and second, where leadership roles change on a yearly basis. Both have resulted in vibrant sections. Other topics that were discussed included some “non-conference” activities like a newsletter or a website. These, of course, are contingent upon having people who are interested in maintaining a newsletter or a website over a period of time. Some sections encourage participation by awarding a prize for best paper at the annual conference. It was suggested that section breakfasts and lunches at the annual conference have separate pricing for section members and non-members in order to encourage membership. It was agreed that the ALSB more should be done to publicize the existence of the various sections in order to encourage more people to join.

Montréal

August 6-11, 2019

Chers collègues,

Je suis ravi de commencer à planifier notre conférence à Montréal. Nous prévoyons de grands événements pour vous. L'hôtel est magnifique, Montréal est magnifique et le Vieux-Montréal est comme un monde à part. Vous allez adorer son charme d'antan, l'abondance de plats délicieux et le mélange étonnant des cultures européennes et du «nouveau monde». Rejoignez-nous du 6 au 11 août à Montréal!

Get your passports ready! The 2019 ALSB meeting will be held at the The InterContinental Montréal, on the edge of Old Montreal. Join us in the world's second largest French-speaking city on a beautiful island where the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers converge.

Montréal is a city with European flair and a fantastic history. Although it is one of the largest French-speaking cities on Earth, most residents are bilingual or trilingual. In fact, over 80 languages are spoken regularly in Montréal. The city's flag has five symbols to represent its history and culture: a cross represents Christian principles, a fleur-de-lis is for the French, a shamrock for the Irish, a thistle for the Scottish and a Lancastrian rose for the English.

Culturally, Montréal was the location of the world's first indoor ice hockey game – in 1875 – and the home of the first organized hockey team at McGill University. It also is home to the Notre-Dame Basilica, visited by Pope John Paul II in 1982. The amazing Cirque du Soleil is headquartered in Montréal. In addition, Montréal is home to the RESO, Montreal's Underground City, which hosts galleries, Metro stations, nightclubs, restaurants, and even a library.

Old Montréal boasts plazas, markets, food tours, historic architecture, the first bank of Canada, and museums (including the Museum Pointe-à-Callière where you can see part of the original wall of the city and get a history of its growth). For those interested in outdoor activities, there are over 210 miles of bike paths in Montréal, as well as a lovely hike up the 764 foot high Mont Royal, a beautiful mountain on the island. No building on the island can be built higher than the cross at the top of the mountain. Finally, Montréal boasts more restaurants per capita than any other North American city except New York City. You have not lived until you have had poutine.

Our conference sessions will be in the historic Nordheimer building, connected to the hotel by the historic Ruelle des Fortifications and part of the World Trade Centre Montréal.

Blow Your Own Horn....News from the ALSB Membership

MICHAEL O'HARA married Mary Petersen on July 21 and honeymooned at Disney World during the same week as the Portland conference....a good reason to miss it! CONGRATULATIONS!

More Congratulations to our colleague and American Business Law Journal Editorial Board member TERENCE LAU who has accepted the position of dean of the College of Business at California State University Chico. <http://www.csuchico.edu/cob/news/new-dean-named-for-cob.shtml>

EVEN MORE CONGRATS! "I am sorry to miss Portland this year but I have a good reason. I got married on Whidbey Island on August 4. ALSB Members Lisa Reed, Dave Arnesen and Terry Foster were honored guests. My new husband,

Jason Sedgwick, is an east coaster so after spending time on the island post wedding with our 6 kids (yikes!) we are back in Maryland for another week. We are planning to live bi coastally for another year as the kids move onto college. Miss you all!!!! Here is a pic... Hugs,
Eva Lasprogata

RONNIE COHEN will be publishing her last National Refereed Proceedings this year as she is stepping down. Linda Ficht is succeeding her.

This is truly a thankless job done for the benefit of the ALSB. Ronnie was motivated by love and dedicated to the ALSB and for that we are truly grateful.

We honored her at the annual awards banquet in Portland with a plaque of appreciation and an enthusiastic round of appreciative applause.

Wolters-Kluwer is the world's largest publisher of scholarly law books. ALSB members, AXEL HILLING (Lund University, Sweden) and DAN OSTAS (University of Oklahoma) recently published a book with WK entitled "Corporate Taxation and Social Responsibility." The book combines Axel's expertise on taxation with ideas that Dan has published over the past decade, mostly in the ABLJ. Please see the Wolters Kluwer advertisement at <https://lrus.wolterskluwer.com/store/product/corporate-taxation-and-social-responsibility/>

Wake Forest University School of Business has been recognized as a global innovator, honored with the Ideas Worth Teaching Award from the Aspen Institute Business & Society Program for "Why Business?" course.

The Ideas Worth Teaching Awards honor extraordinary teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels that redefines excellent in business education – and ultimately business practice, according to the organization.

Wake Forest's "Why Business?" course was developed by Jim Otteson, Thomas W. Smith chair in business ethics, over a period of three years. Otteson—a philosopher and Adam Smith expert—assembled a cross-disciplinary teaching team, including legal studies professor (and ALSB member, and Master Teacher Award winner) MATTHEW PHILLIPS and economics professor Adam Hyde, to deliver the course to a broad audience of students considering a career in business.

"Why Business is an introductory course in business philosophy," said Matthew Phillips, who is also director of the School of Business BB&T Center for the Study of Capitalism. "The class asks students to think about why we would want to spend time learning about business and then engaging in business as professionals. It's one course that introduces them to practical philosophy, business ethics, and political economy while offering an environment for thinking critically about whether the business profession is something they want to be part of."

ALSB CENTENNIAL MEETING IN 2024

In 1924 at the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago, in conjunction with the annual meeting of the American Association of Law Schools, a group of twenty-seven faculty began what was then called the Association of Instructors in Law in Collegiate Schools of Business.

At the 1926 annual meeting, again in conjunction with the American Association of Law Schools at the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago, the group changed its name to the Association of Teachers of Law in Collegiate Schools of Business. This name stuck until 1937, when it was changed to the American Business Law Association. Finally, in 1991, the membership, by then with over 1,000 dues-paying members, voted overwhelming at the annual meeting in Portland, Maine to adopt the name Academy of Legal Studies in Business.

While there were a few years without annual meetings (before 1952), the Academy of Legal Studies in Business will celebrate its 100th year of existence in 2024. Accordingly, we are planning to celebrate in grand fashion. The Midyear Meeting of the ALSB will be held at the Midwest Academy of Legal Studies in Business in Chicago in 2024 in order to commemorate the origins of the organization in that great city. The Annual Conference of the ALSB will be held in Washington, D.C. because of its many obvious and wonderful connections to the study of law.

Efforts are already under way to plan for the Annual Conference in 2024. For those of you who may have contacts in Washington or suggestions regarding events for the conference, please contact any member of the Executive Committee.

The Academy of Legal Studies in Business advances legal studies in business education and is the professional home for legal studies researchers and educators, fostering collegial relationships and productive collaboration with researchers, educators, and organizations throughout the world. The Academy promotes knowledge of law, ethical behaviors, and an appreciation for justice, in research and teaching, so that students better understand the world in which businesses operate and so that business leaders may better understand their relationship with society and the impact of their decisions.
